CIRCLING the CIRCLE

—The zoo gathered by Governor Smith over the last ten years is seven dogs, one elk, one deer, three monkeys, three racoons, seven pheasants, twelve gold fish and four parrots.

—Ferdinand Cartier, a New Yorkpen-and-ink draftsman, has drawn a picture of the buildings and grounds of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. It required more than half a million minute pen strokes.

—Venezuela has a population of 3,026,878, of which 136,147 are classified as belonging to the Indian tribes which have not been assimilated in the general population.

—Mrs. Salomea Jaranowski, of Chicago, was frying perch for her children's luncheon one day last week, when she was hurriedly called from her kitchen stove to a mahogany desk to be sworn in as county recorder at $15,000 a year.

—Freight business handled by the Pennsylvania railroad in 1927 amounted to 22,532,765 tons. Freight moving in carload lots accounted for 216,382,083 tons and less-than-carload business for 6,149,962 tons.

—Mrs. Jeannie Gourlay Struthers, the only surviving woman member of the company that played "Our American Cousin" in Ford's theater on the night that Abraham Lincoln was assassinated has died in Media, Pa.

—The consolidated income account of Pullman, Inc., and all subsidiaries for the first fiscal period (eight months) from commencement of operation for consolidated account to Dec. 31, 1927, shows total earnings from all sources of $14,419,162.

—The net earnings of the Diamond Match company for 1927 amounted to $1,604,352 or $9.66 a share of outstanding capital stock as compared with $1,602,469 or $9.62 a share for the preceding year and $1,606,198, or $9.56 a share in 1925.

—The American Telephone and Telegraph company reports net income of $128,814,910 in 1927, or $11.76 a share on the 10,932,420 shares of stock outstanding. This compared with $116,990,401 earned in 1926, which was equivalent of $11.95 a share on 9,706,309 shares then outstanding.

—Musical encores are all right in their place, but we'd hate to be a judge of a contest, compelled to hear "Moonlight Sonata" played six times in succession or concussion, or four violin renditions of "Melody in F." However, in view of the view, we might be willing to listen to "Morning" and "The Old Road," six times.

—Contracts for $276,000,000 worth of building construction were awarded in Canada in 1924, $298,000,000 in 1925, $372,000,000 in 1926, and $419,000,000 in 1927. This trend was particularly marked in Ontario, where the total for 1927 was $196,000,000 as compared with $142,000,000 and $121,000,000 in the two previous years.

—George L. Cooley, commonly known as the father of the Ohio Farm Bureau, was chosen president of the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance company at its recent annual meeting in Columbus. The organization has issued more than 24,000 policies to farmers of Ohio in a little less than two years.

—The Rev. J. Barthelmas, of Adamsville, Ohio, drops into the office to see about his subscription to our paper and also to inform us that the story recently saying frogs were croaking as a harbinger of spring, was not quite, exactly true. The minister declares they are crawling, as he has investigated. Well, crawling or not, it must soon be warm weather that's lurking around the corner.

—Employees of the New York Central, of which the Big Four is a part, "stick" according to a statement from the executive offices in New York, which says that of the 735 pensioned in 1927, 44 of them had seen fifty years or more of service to the company. Eight of them were engineers whose service averaged 52 years and seven months. Of the remainder 319 had seen 40 years service. Three hundred and thirty-seven retired at 70-year age limit; 269 on disabilities, and 129 voluntarily under the 65-year limit. A total of $2,330,359 was paid out by the company in pensions for 1927, and nearly $17,000,000 since the pension plan became operative in 1910.

KELLOGG PLAN ASSAILED FOR ITS LIABILITY

Secretary of State Would Send Delegates to Immigration Meeting.

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
I. N. S. News Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, March 28 — Another outburst against the Administration's foreign policy was threatened in congress today over the proposal of Secretary of State Kellogg to send delegates to an international conference on immigration at Havana, Cuba.

Declaring that discussion of immigration questions with foreign powers will only lead the United States into trouble, a house group headed by Rep. McReynolds (D) of Tennessee and Box (D), of Texas, planned to block a bill providing $5,000 for the Havana trip. An emphatic declaration by Secretary Kellogg that American delegates would refuse to discuss the American restriction policy failed to appease the opposition.

Can't See Conference
"I see no reason for such a conference, and if one is held I hope that our representatives will continue to maintain that this is a purely domestic matter, to be controlled by congress," said Box. "When you agree to discuss immigration with foreign nations you necessarily do so with regard to their views. We cannot settle immigration questions by international agreements."

"President Johnson in 1868 negotiated a treaty with China saying that nations have an inalienable right to migrate and it took this country 25 years to overcome the ill effects of this policy."

Rep. Burton (R) of Ohio, handling the bill for the house foreign affairs committee, said that opposition was expected but asserted that it was ill-founded.

He declared that only questions of sanitation and protection of immigrants to all nations would be discussed.

Embarrassing Questions
Opponents of the measure are said to fear that recent congressional hearing on the Box bill to place Canada, Mexico and South American countries under the restricted immigration quota system may bring embarrassing questions at the proposed conference.

With the conference scheduled to be held on March 31, quick action was sought by administration leaders in congress. The state department, it is understood, plans to send delegates regardless of the fate of the bill.

"Should delegates be appointed they will be instructed to make clear this government's position with respect to immigration and to take no action inconsistent with the attitude and prerogatives of the congress of the United States in this connection," Secretary Kellogg said in a letter to the house foreign affairs committee.

FLORA NICHOLS DIES NEAR HERE

Mrs. Flora E. Nichols, aged 66, died Monday night at her home in Huntington township, Ross county, born at Yellowbud, Nov. 26, 1862, the daughter of Mrs. Mary J. Daigarn. She was married in 1887 to William H. Nichols.

Mrs. Nichols is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. John McCormick, of Clarksville; five sons, Chester of Chillicothe, Samuel at home, and Earl, Mortiz and Curtis of Dayton. Mrs. Clara Kelley and William Daigarn, a sister and brother live in Columbus. She also leaves 20 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Spring Bank church, near Yellowbud, Thursday, at 1:30 p. m., with Rev. John Strong officiating. The body will be taken from the home at noon Thursday. Burial will be in Spring Bank cemetery.

Denies Vehemently

Will Hayes, czar of the movies, is on his way abroad for a few months' rest. Before sailing from New York he denied that there was any connection between himself, Harry Sinclair and the Continental Trading Company which is being investigated in reference to the Teapot Dome Oil bonds.

COMMISSION TO DECIDE VALUE OF PROPERTIES

To Make Own Appraisal in Circleville's Telephone Rate Hearing.

The hearing of objections against the raise in telephone rates in this city, conducted by the City of Circleville against the Citizens Telephone company in Columbus, was brought to a close late Tuesday afternoon, with no decision reached.

This city was represented by City Solicitor Paul E. Adkins in the case.

The State Utilities Commission, before which both the objections and arguments, pro and con, were raised, announced that it would appoint its own engineers to make an appraisal of the telephone company's property, with the purpose of seeing whether the company's property was $160,000, as stated, and valued high enough to warrant a raise in phone rates.

After these engineers prepare their valuation figures, cross-examination of witnesses both for the city and telephone company will take place and a decision likely made.

AGAIN USE PACKET

MIDDLEPORT, O., March 28 — (INS) — The Ohio river packet Senator Cordell went back into the local trade today after being in the docks for weeks for boiler repairs. Several days ago three men were killed on this boat in an explosion at Pt. Pleasant.

OH, OFFICER, SEND THIS MAN A POST CARD!

NEW YORK, March 28 — (INS) — The service in New York is terrible. John E. Estbert, 30, of Waukesha, Wis., called for a policeman and this is what he got.

Estbert, who was visiting the city for his employers, Quarles and Co., investment bankers, of Milwaukee, went to the movies Monday night. After the show he called a taxicab and gave directions to his hotel.

The cab bucked along like a movie bronco for time. Then it stopped and the driver opened the door. The street outside resembled a dark alley. The driver yanked Estbert out. Socko! The driver hit Estbert. The driver took from him $200 and a gold watch and chain. Neglecting to ask for a tip, the driver drove away.

JUNKERS MONO PLANE BALKED BY ADVERSE WINDS--STAYS IN HANGAR PREPARED FOR FLIGHT

Hop-off of German Fliers Today Would Be Foolhardy, They Are Advised, So Start of Flight to America Is Planned For Thursday.

DUBLIN, March 28 — (INS) — Balked by unfavorable winds, the Junkers monoplane Bremen, in which three German airmen will hazard the dangers of a westward hop over the Atlantic, remained in its hangar at the Baldonnel airfield near here today.

Favorable weather reports received last night gave the fliers hope that they might start today but later reports indicated that a hop-off would be foolhardy. If the adverse winds subside, the airmen will start at dawn tomorrow.

Captain Hermann Koehl, the pilot, inspected the plane after it had been thoroughly overhauled, refueled and provisioned following its flight from Berlin. He said the plane was in perfect condition.

Plan Southern Route
The Bremen will follow the southern or steamship route rather than the northern "great circle" heretofore followed by Trans-Atlantic aviators, according to Baron Von Huenefeld, financial backer of the flight. The baron will go along as a passenger.

Captain Koehl feels that by taking the southern route the danger of sleet formation will be materially lessened. The plane will be completely paraffined before the start to further offset this hazard.

Fritz Loose, a German aviator, who accompanied Koehl last year on his unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic will act as relief pilot.

If the German fliers succeed in their contemplated flight, they will have been the first to cross the Atlantic from Europe. Seven persons, two of them women, have never been heard from after attempting the westward hop.

Koehl and his companions are anxious to go. They have great confidence in their plane and do not ask for perfect weather. The Bremen was thoroughly tested last summer in its first Trans-Atlantic attempt. It was forced to turn back after passing the west coast of Ireland and reached Dessau, Germany, safely after a flight of 2,200 miles under adverse conditions.

Fully Prepared
"We expect bad weather but are prepared to fight it," Koehl stated. Koehl estimated it would take from 31 to 36 hours to reach Mitchell field, L. I. The Bremen has a cruising range of 46 hours in good weather and 40 in bad weather. Its maximum speed is 130 miles an hour. It flies most economically at 90 miles an hour. On its flight from Berlin to Ireland it maintained an average speed of 105 miles an hour.

The Bremen is powered by a 12 cylinder motor of the same type as that which brought the record for endurance flying to Germany. It develops 240 horse-power.

The ship carries enough fuel for 4,500 miles. The distance from Baldonnel to Mitchell field is approximately 3,500 miles.

WARREN, O., March 28 — (INS) — The bulk of the $4,000,000 estate of the late James Ward Packard, founder of the Packard Automobile company, of Detroit, is placed in trust with most of the income to go to Packard's widow, according to reports received here today from Jamestown, N. Y., where the automotive pioneer's will is on file.

ARM IS BROKEN BY MACHINERY

Theodore Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Koch, of Jackson township, suffered a fracture of his right arm just above the wrist Wednesday morning when attempting to crank a Fordson tractor. He had been adjusting the timer on the tractor, and had failed to reconnect it properly and a short circuit resulted.

An X-Ray was taken by Dr. G. L. Hittler, and the fracture was reduced by Dr. Howard Jones. The Koch family live on a farm owned by Mr. Felix Caldwell.

PACKARD ESTATE

WARREN, O., March 28 — (INS) — The bulk of the $4,000,000 estate of the late James Ward Packard, founder of the Packard Automobile company, of Detroit, is placed in trust with most of the income to go to Packard's widow, according to reports received here today from Jamestown, N. Y., where the automotive pioneer's will is on file.

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR ESCAPES

Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, missed being the victim of a wholesale holdup only due to the fact that his automobile was behind schedule. Some two hundred auto-wreckers stopped and searched by a polite gang of highwaymen. The arrival of government troops on a pay car drove the bandits away. It is thought that the robbers had planned to intercept Ambassador Morrow and his party in an attempt to embarrass the government.

By C. C. NICOLET

CHICAGO, March 28 — (UP) — Threats of new bombings, and counter charges of violence rival political factions at multitude of investigations into bombing of the homes of U. S. Senator Charles S. McNamara and John J. Swanson, served only to increase today the turmoil and confusion of Chicago's political war.

Thoroughly alarmed, the prepared for new outbreaks violence from now until the early April 10. It seemed as that the remaining two weeks of the campaign would be a period of war with bombs and bullets.

Another bombing occurred shortly before midnight. A pump concern, owned by Emil, was wrecked by a black der bomb. Although police inclined to link the bombing with the beer and alky war, spread that Seller was being cause he recently refused to permit political posters to be in the windows of his store.

Nevertheless, the bombing 62nd in five months—marked a considerable alarm on the part of the city and forecast a timed violence.

Meanwhile the following occurred:

Threaten Committee
Joseph Savage, candidate for city clerk, was threatened with death letter which was signed "Diamond Joe." "Diamond Joe" was the leader of the 25th old "bloody nineteenth" — a favorite over Savage in the mite-man's race.

Savage was protected today by a bodyguard, and the bomb forty other political leaders, guard, state and city officials gathered against further bomb attacks.

Rewards totalling $65,000 offered by police and leads the Thompson-Barrett Rep faction for arrest and conviction of the bombers of the Deenec Swanson homes.

Armed Men Ready
Heavily armed squads pat the ward where "Diamond" was assassinated. Gangster has also been watched closely.

Police Commissioner McHughes announced that no a. had been made in the Deenec Swanson bombings and that were "no developments."

State's Attorney Robert Crowe announced he would witnesses to the two attacks investigation today.

ARM IS BROKEN BY MACHINERY

Theodore Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Koch, of Jackson township, suffered a fracture of his right arm just above the wrist Wednesday morning when attempting to crank a Fordson tractor. He had been adjusting the timer on the tractor, and had failed to reconnect it properly and a short circuit resulted.

An X-Ray was taken by Dr. G. L. Hittler, and the fracture was reduced by Dr. Howard Jones. The Koch family live on a farm owned by Mr. Felix Caldwell.

PACKARD ESTATE

WARREN, O., March 28 — (INS) — The bulk of the $4,000,000 estate of the late James Ward Packard, founder of the Packard Automobile company, of Detroit, is placed in trust with most of the income to go to Packard's widow, according to reports received here today from Jamestown, N. Y., where the automotive pioneer's will is on file.

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR ESCAPES

Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, missed being the victim of a wholesale holdup only due to the fact that his automobile was behind schedule. Some two hundred autos were stopped and searched by a polite gang of highwaymen. The arrival of government troops on a pay car drove the bandits away. It is thought that the robbers had planned to intercept Ambassador Morrow and his party in an attempt to embarrass the government.

The great special offer whereby many thousand votes may be secured for a string of new subscribers will close Thursday night at 8 o'clock. This offer will not be extended and every candidate who expects to win either of the prizes will make superhuman effort to get in on the extra votes Thursday night. This has been a wonderful chance to amass millions of votes and the candidate who has not taken advantage of this great proposition will without doubt have cause to sit in sorrowful retrospection on April 14, when some other candidate who saved the extra votes this week drives away the Buick sedan.

Now is the time when big surprises are sprung in the evening. A candidate, who has not been considered a dangerous competitor by the other workers, but appeared suddenly, may win the prize. (Concluded on Page Five)

BODY RETURNED FROM PITTSBURG

The body of Mrs. Jennie Moeller, who died at her home in Pittsburgh Tuesday morning, arrived in Columbus Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. It was immediately brought to Circleville to the home of her brother, Mr. Edward S. Stevens, on East High street by M. S. Rinehart.

The funeral will be conducted from that residence Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Franklin McElfresh of the Methodist church preaching the sermon. Burial will be in Forest cemetery in charge of M. S. Rinehart, funeral director.

BOMBINGS AND THREATS COME WITH TURMOIL

City Alarmed For Once—Prepares For New Primary Outbreaks.

By C. C. NICOLET
CHICAGO, March 28 — (UP) — Threats of new bombings, charges and counter charges of violence by rival political factions and a multitude of investigations into the bombing of the homes of U. S. Senator Charles S. Bensen and Judge John J. Swanson served only to increase today the turmoil and confusion of Chicago's political war.

Thoroughly alarmed, the city prepared for new outbreaks of violence from now until the primary April 10. It seemed certain that the remaining two weeks of the campaign would be a political war with bombs and bullets.

Another bombing occurred shortly before midnight. A beer pump concern, owned by Emil Seiler, was wrecked by a black powder bomb. Although police were inclined to link the bombing with the beer and alky war, humorists spread that Seiler was bombed because he recently refused to permit political posters to be placed in the windows of his store. The rumors could not be confirmed.

Nevertheless, the bombing—the 62nd in five months—caused considerable alarm on the south side of the city and forecasted continued violence.

Meanwhile the following events occurred:

Threaten Committeeman
Joseph Savage, candidate for committeeman from the 25th ward was threatened with death in a letter which was signed "Friends of Diamond Joe." "Diamond Joe" Esposito, until he was ambushed and slain last Wednesday night, was the leader of the 25th—the old "bloody nineteenth"—and was a favorite over Savage in the committeeman's race.

Savage was protected today by a bodyguard, and the homes of forty other political leaders, federal, state and city officials were guarded against further bombing attacks.

Rewards totalling $65,000 were offered by police and leaders of the Thompson-Barrett Republican faction for arrest and conviction of the bombers of the Deneen and Swanson homes.

Armed Men Ready
Heavily armed squads patrolled the ward where "Diamond Joe" was assassinated. Gangster haunts also were watched closely.

Police Commissioner Michael Hughes announced that no arrests had been made in the Deneen and Swanson bombings and that there were "no developments."

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe announced he would hear witnesses to the two attacks in his investigation today.

The Deneen-Swanson faction began its own investigation, accompanied by charges against Thompson faction.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom's presence in Chicago gave rise to new rumors he might call a special grand jury investigation over the head of State's Attorney Crowe.

The Union Ministers' association passed a resolution urging the voters to "register their indignation at the primary April 10 against vice and corruption existing in Chicago."

The letter which threatened the life of Savage said:

DARK WARRIOR WINS

LONDON, March 28 — (INS) — The Lincolnshire handicap was won today by dark warrior. Philammon ran second and the Mohawk third. Twenty-six horses were entered in the race and some of the best jockeys in England were pitted against each other. The favorite, Orbindon, failed to get in the money.

New Ohio Utilities Company Home To Be Opened Thursday

BIG LIGHT AND POWER CO. HAS EXPANSION

O. S. Howard Building, Completely Remodeled, to House Utility.

Doors of the new home of the Ohio Utilities company will be formally opened in Circleville Thursday.

The new home of The Circleville Division of the Ohio Utilities company at the O. S. Howard building, 114 East Main street, has been designed with the single purpose of better serving this community.

Whatever of pride the company may feel in the material beauty of its new surroundings is overshadowed and surpassed by the satisfaction it finds in its enlarged ability to render a more full and complete service to its patrons.

The company's new quarters are its contribution to the civic advancement of Circleville. From a purely practical standpoint, it might function just as well, so far as it alone is concerned, in less attractive surroundings.

But the Ohio Utilities company prefers to count itself as a component part of every city in which it operates and to become, in every sense, a loyal and progressive "citizen" of each community it serves.

Has Real Interest
Thus it has a deep and sincere interest in the material progress of Circleville. It has no ambitions or desires which do not contribute to the prosperity of the city, for it appreciates the economic truth that the most lasting benefits are those which are shared among all the people.

In this spirit, The Ohio Utilities company has moved into its new home which is thrown open to the public on Thursday with an informal reception of its patrons and friends between the hours of one and nine p. m. Visitors will find a thoroughly modern office and merchandising display room dedicated to the more complete serving of the people of Circleville.

"We are striving," says Division Manager Charles T. Gilmore, "to contribute more largely to the comfort and convenience of our patrons and to extend, in every sense of the word 'utility', the contentment and happiness which are the essence of what a utility may be expected to accomplish as its contribution to the public service."

Every Detail Replete
From the public drinking fountain in the main office to the public relations hall in the basement, every detail of the new quarters has been born of a desire to render greater service to the people of Circleville.

When a patron passes under the new electric sign, modest but strikingly attractive, and enters through the front door over a floor of artistic tile, every office employee of the company is at once in plain view and immediately accessible.

The front portion of the main room is given over to the display of electrical merchandise. At the rear is a counter behind which are stationed bookkeepers and cashiers. At the left is the desk of Manager Gilmore, out in the open where he is always readily available to the most casual caller. Adjoining his desk space is a glass-enclosed and paneled room for private conferences.

Back of the main room is a series of smaller rooms for storage of office supplies and merchandise, meter testing and laboratory purposes. All of the woodwork is of white oak finished in flat natural tone.

Free Public Room
The most unusual feature of the new quarters is a basement room dedicated by The Ohio Utilities company to the free use of all the people of Circleville. It is contemplated that this room in time shall become a sort of public forum for neighborly contact.

Neatly furnished, brilliantly illuminated, adequately heated and scientifically ventilated to provide a complete change of air every five minutes, it provides a splendid meeting place for small community gatherings, where public questions may be discussed or various groups may assemble for social intercourse.

The new office bears the distinctive trade-mark, "Made in Circleville." Everything entering into it, with the single exception of electrical equipment, was purchased in Circleville stores or made in Circleville factories. The floor-coverings and furniture came from Circleville merchants; the counters, partitions and display cases are the products of Circleville mills; and the completed whole is the handiwork of skilled Circleville artisans—carpenters, painters, heating engineers, tin-smiths and plumbers.

Circleville Enterprise
Just as its new office is the product of present-day Circleville stores and workmen, so also is The Ohio Utilities company the fruit of Circleville enterprise of a day long gone.

It was in 1859,—sixty-nine years ago,—that Dr. N. A. Jones, father of Dr. Howard Jones, and a group of associates, organized the Circleville Gas Light & Coke company and supplied the village streets and homes with the then modern form of illumination.

In 1884, three years after Thomas A. Edison had launched his first central electric generating station in New York, Henry Worthington and W. W. Hoffman, of Cincinnati, purchased the Ohio state rights for the use of Edison's inventions and immediately began erection of electric plants simultaneously in Circleville and Piqua. They wished to gain valuable experience in the operation of these plants before entering the larger field in Cincinnati.

Messrs. Worthington and Hoffman organized the Circleville Edison Electric Illuminating company with $50,000 capital stock, one-half of which was subscribed by Circleville investors, and installed their machinery in a building which still stands in the rear of Pickens' restaurant, being used today as a garage by Young Brothers.

Rapid Growth
The Piqua plant was in operation

three weeks before the Circleville plant was completed but before the end of 1884 one thousand electric lights were burning in the homes and stores of Circleville,—second city in Ohio to enjoy the wonders of electricity.

Two years later 16-candlepower lamps were installed on the street, thus giving Circleville the distinction of being the first city in the United States to possess electric street lights.

In the meantime, Dr. Howard Jones had succeeded to the management of the local gas company, organized by his father. He realized that strong competition was at hand and, ever promoting rather than resisting progress, he decided to enter the electric field.

Accordingly, in 1890, Dr. Jones organized the Pickaway Electric Light & Power company and secured a five year contract from the city to light its streets with ninety of the then new arc lamps.

This was a severe blow to the original electric company and served to bring to a climax, other difficulties under which it was laboring in a divided field. The gas company was also suffering from the competitive situation and neither was making a profit.

As the best, and perhaps the only way out, Dr. Jones organized a new enterprise, the Circleville Light & Power company, which took over both the Pickaway Electric Light & Power company and the Circleville Light & Coke company and later purchased the original Circleville Edison Electric Illuminating company at sheriff's sale, the latter's total investment of $100,000 bringing only $10,000 under the hammer.

Sell Out
Dr. Jones and his associates in the new company continued operations until 1915 when they sold to eastern men—who two years later disposed of their interests to The Ohio Utilities Co. Shortly thereafter the latter discarded the local generating plant and contracted for energy from the central stations of the Columbus Railway, Power & Light company.

This enlarged service was further augmented in 1926 when the transmission lines of the local company were inter-connected with those of its affiliated organization, The Southern Ohio Electric company, which has a large central generating station at Floodwood, Athens county, supplying electric energy to scores of communities and hundreds of industrial plants in southern Ohio and West Virginia.

Thus today, linked with three great central generating stations, Circleville can boast of a truly unlimited supply of electric energy, far more than sufficient for its present needs and guaranteed not only to keep pace with but to march far ahead of any possible future requirements.

COST OF LIVING IS 62 PER CENT MORE THAN ELECTRICITY

The cost of living in the United States in July, 1927, was 62 per cent above the cost in 1914, while electricity in the home was 13 per cent below the 1914 cost, according to the latest figures of the national industrial conference board.

Since December, 1921, the index of the cost of living has fluctuated within comparatively narrow limits, the board states, the maximum noted in the period having been 71.8 per cent above 1914 in November, 1925, and the minimum having been 54.5 per cent above 1914 in August, 1922.

The following table is based on the reports of the board and shows the relative importance of the items comprising the cost of living budget and the cost of each

Has your iron a built-in watchman?

The famous Spencer Disc Thermostat is a permanent watchman, built into the Westinghouse Iron. It turns the iron off before it gets too hot—on again before it gets too cool. You don't have to touch or remember anything. Unlike the ordinary iron, this one stays at correct ironing heat—always!

The Westinghouse is the original automatic iron—using the simplest and most successful method of heat control. Ask your nearest dealer to show you this iron, used by thousands of satisfied women.

BIBLE THOUGHT

THE PATHS OF PEACE—Length of days is in wisdom's right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor. Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.—Prov. 3:16, 17.

PRAYER—Four out, O God, Thy spirit upon us and make known to us Thy words.

WHAT WOULD YOU PICK?

If you were asked to pick one word that would characterize modern Americans, what word would you pick?

J. D. Mooney, president of the General Motors Export Co., says that the first thing he notices when he returns to this country from abroad "is the restlessness that I see all about me." And perhaps that one word—"restlessness"—is about as apt a word as you could choose.

At the close of the Revolution, the American colonists, with restless haste, began to swarm over the back country behind the Alleghenies. They roamed deep into the forests, founded new cities, dug canals, sent seamen and barges up and down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and in a generation had hewed out a new empire.

They had not finished before the Louisiana purchase had abruptly extended their horizon a couple of thousand miles farther west. Again the restless urge seized them and they were off. The great plains were settled and cleared of savage enemies. A war was fought with Mexico, and the great empire of California and the southwest passed into American hands.

When the expansion of territory ceased, the restless ones found new outlets for their energies in industrial expansion. All over the land mills began to shoot their black smoke toward the sky. New railroads were built, new mines were dug, new industries founded; there was no leisure, no time for resting and taking stock, no time for developing the arts. Always there were more jobs to be done, and always the restless American threw himself into them with enthusiasm.

Today we have no more virgin territory to settle. Our industries are pretty well stabilized. Yet the old restlessness exists, and it is looking abroad; the energies that will find outlets. Americans are formerly went into expansion at home are now building up an industrial and financial empire that is embracing the whole earth.

America today has nearly $15,000,000,000 invested abroad. Young men, in ever increasing numbers, are being sent far afield to look after these investments—to Europe, to Africa, to South America, to the islands of the far east. In their wake go the salesmen, and following them go steamers bearing American goods. The restlessness that develops a continent is now extending its influence over every land.

Restlessness; yes, it's a pretty good word for us. Most of the time we don't know exactly where we are going, or why; yet we keep eternally at it, driven by the urge that has been bred in us. And without quite realizing it, we are changing the civilization of the world.

THE SPRING BIRDS

The birdsongs of the spring season bring a wonderful new note of cheer into the air, and even those climates that have some birds all winter, hear from some favorites who had gone to climes still farther south for their winter holiday. When you hear those rippling trills, the world all at once seems sweeter again. Somehow a new note of happiness seems to have crept into life. The harshness of nature disappears, and all at once you feel new hope and promise are in the air.

A fine human voice may be very beautiful, but it does not seem quite to reach the point of ecstasy produced by that little warbling creature up in those branches. It is hard to believe that the world is going to be cold and unfriendly, when you hear those melodies so graceful and enchanting around the homes of Circleville.

RESOLUTIONS

NOW Spring Comes
Tripping 'round Again
And bringing roses
With the rain,
A million waving Daffodils
To greet me from
The green-topped Hills;
My weary, winter Feet seem light
And every worldly Thing seems Right,
I greet my fellow-men
Each day
And every one of Them seems gay,
And I resolve I'll better Be
And live a life Of solid glee,
I'll work and toil
From morn 'till Night,
And I will do Each job just right,
When Spring Comes 'round
I'm filled with life
Forgetting all The storm and strife,
Content with Each and every thing
My soul within Me Starts to sing—
Each spring some Resolutions Make
But they are only Born to Break—

And what we mean to say Is,
Don't fret if you Resolve and fail
Your mind and body Soon grow stale
If you keep on within A rut
Your life is caged Within a hut—
Make resolutions To the end
Although you've Fallen 'round
The bend.

THEY DO

Those lovely stockings put away
Their term of life is done,
But of them you can never say:
"They do not choose to run."

—Edgar A. Guest, Detroit poet.

Those lovely stockings she put on,
Though with sobs her frame shook;

"They're all I've got," she moaned,
"and hope
At them no one will look."
—Sam Hill, Ciney Enquirer.

Those lovely stockings put away,
Where once they filled a need,
She danced in them both night and day,
Of course they ran—indeed!

Who remembers the old-fashioned days when you didn't have to give a bell-boy a tip as big as the price of your hotel room in order to get him to bring you a little pitcher of ice water?

There's only one answer when a "girl" of sixty still has a blush—she's been in the paint department of some drug store!

The more we look at some of this glorified underwear the men are intending to wear, at least some of them, the more we are debating whether we ought to call him "George" or "Alice."

We have always contended, observes Bob Ryder, that platforms ought to be brief and to the point and our suggestion for our great party's plank on the state of the oil industry and alleged subjects is, in full, as follows: S-s-s-h! Don't tell 'em a thing, Bob.

IF THAT TORPEDO ROUTE PROVES PRACTICAL

Hollywood

by Dave Keene

(Special to The Herald)
HOLLYWOOD, March 28—Things are not shaping up so well for the bathing girls. The vogue for pulchritude of form in short subjects best known as "two reelers," seems to have passed.

The comedy lots are going in for a more serious brand of slapstick, if there can be degrees of solemnity in those vehicles. Now they have a definite plot in the hands of a capable cast and there is little room in the footage for a bevy of aimlessly wandering and powder-dry mermaids.

It is estimated that there are more than one hundred and fifty former bathing girls now in other lines of work. Some are dancing girls in the frontier rendezvous of the West. Others have gone in for society drama and are pouring tea in the afternoon party scenes. Several of them are modeling frocks in smart shops. Three of them are selling real estate. This I know personally. I very nearly bought a parcel of sand and sagebrush in a very remote subdivision all because of my life-long weakness for the wiles of the feminine sex. If you ever desire to see sales resistance battered to a pulp send out three ex-bathing girls on the assignment.

In my opinion they could sell the one hose they to Lindbergh and make him ride in it.

Reginald Denny has long tried his hand at writing screen stories and has turned out some very successful ones. Now appears another writer-star, none less than Colleen Moore. Miss Moore has just returned from a little vacation at Palm Springs. While there she wrote a story. Now she is trying to sell it.

Periodically you hear of Mack Sennett girls and Mack Sennett comedians who have "graduated" from the comedy lot into bigger opportunities. Chester Conklin was once the rightfully famous chief of the Keystone cops. Malcolm St. Clair, director of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and many another smart motion picture, was once a Sennett funster. Mabel Normand, Phyllis Haver, and more recently and spectacularly Ruth Taylor, are leading women who left Sennett for greener pastures.

But now, and for the first time in Hollywood's colorful history, a Possibly inspired by the natural background and native cast picture, "Stark Love," filmed in the mountains of the south, other mountaineer pictures are now being made. Dick Barthelmess has just completed "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which he hopes will equal the success of his "Tollable David." Approaching from the other angle Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton are now making a comedy based on the hazards of mountain feudists. So another picture cycle starts.

Rena Vale is thrilling to the joys of spending the first $5,000 she ever had in her life. The Los Angeles girl, who not so long ago was peddling hosiery from office to office throughout the business district of the southwestern metropolis, has just been announced as the winner of the Paramount Photoplay $15,000 screen story contest. Her story "Swag" was selected as the best of more than 40,000 submitted. Paramount plans it as a George Bancroft starring picture, a powerful tramp like "Underworld," "The Showdown," and "The Drag Net."

Rena Vale is a mighty interesting girl. I located her in the offices of the Board of Education the other day and we had quite a chat. She was born in Arizona 28 years ago on the famous Diamond S ranch. At the age of six she was an expert rider. After graduating from the Northern Arizona Normal School she taught for a time then cooked and waited table in the canteen at Fort Apache. There she bought an old car and started a stage line over the Painted Desert. Then she went in to San Francisco as a stenographer. Then to Long Beach, California, and opened a dancing school for sailors from the fleet. Then she took up selling hosiery and disposed of 10,000 pairs during one summer.

Then the Board of Education job and her determination to send in a story to the scenario contest. I asked her if she ever had tried writing before. Right off the plains of Arizona came the answer: "Sure, I have over two hundred rejection slips from all of the leading magazines." Her story "Swag" is declared to be unusually good.

The ultimate in something or other is about to be reached. A man by the name of Samuel Freedman has just signed Milton Work, the bridge player, to "star" in a series of 12 two-reelers which will show how the game is played. Different problems will be taken up and explained by means of the camera looking over the shoulders of the participants as they play their hands. I wonder what a slow motion picture of a chess game would look like?

To live in Hollywood and to make no note of fashions is impossible. Even the least observant must have noted that printed taffeta for evening wear, printed chiffon for afternoon wear and printed crepe frocks with coats to match for street wear are the vogue. Little Nancy Carroll, as Irish as a Killarney rose, has even introduced shoes of printed gingham; not too much of it, of course, but just enough to lend that little touch of color that is smart. Purposes of hand-blocked linen are also being carried quite generally. I saw Mary Brian with one just the other afternoon. I had gone to the public library to look at the files of the New York Times. Mary was making inquiry at the counter for one of Ernest Hemingway's first books.

Last minute production news from all of the studios informs that: Ramon Novarro is to do a picture "The Ensign." Belle Benoit is to star in four pictures for Tiffany. Rex Ingram is to direct Cosmo Hamilton's story, "Three Passions" in England with Alice Terry as the star. Fannie Hurst's novel "Lummock" has been purchased by United Artists. Charles Chaplin's next picture is rumored to be "The Suicide Club" and may go into production some time this month or next. The new Emil Jennings picture, now in production, has been titled "High Treason." Clara Bow's next starring picture to follow "Red Hair" will be "Ladies of the Mob," a story with an underworld flavor.

FARM BUREAU'S SELECTION IS RECEIVED HERE

Kentucky Woman Is to Direct New Home and Community Work in Ohio.

Miss Verna Elsinger, until recently home and community worker with the Darby Tobacco Growers' Cooperative association of Lexington, Kentucky, has been named to direct the newly established home and community department of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. Announcement of her appointment has just been received at the Pickaway County Farm bureau office from L. B. Palmer, the federation's president.

Farm women have always been active in the farm bureau organization, according to Palmer's announcement, and for several years membership in the farm bureau has included the family of the individual member. The new department is intended to strengthen and correlate the efforts of county and state organizations to improve farm homes, rural communities and living standards in rural territory of Ohio.

Miss Elsinger is a native of Ohio and understands conditions in rural sections of the state. She was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the state farm bureau in January and left a favorable impression on delegates and members who attended.

GILBERT AND GARBO IN GREAT PICTURE

John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, who as a team scored one of the sensational successes of the year in "Flesh and the Devil," and whose real-life romance immediately following furnished gossip for film fans the world over, appear again before the camera, for the first time since, in "Love," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular filmization of "Anna Karenina," Tolstoy's classic of Russia, which comes Wednesday to the Metropolitan theater.

The new picture, one of the most gorgeous and spectacular film romances of the season, presents both in roles that perhaps fit them better than any others that could be imagined. Gilbert, splendidly uniformed, is seen as the debonair and romantic Count Vronsky, a role that recalls his great hit in "The Merry Widow," with Miss Garbo in the role of the tragic Anna, who sacrifices all for love, only to be dogged by a strange and sinister doom.

FORMER EMPRESS ILL

VIENNA, March 28.—(INS)—Former Empress Zita, of Austria, who was also Queen of Hungary in the days of the dual monarchy before the war, is reported to be ill and facing a serious operation, according to information received here today.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picture-ization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Cantor Rabinowitz, who has trained his son, Jackie, to be a cantor, finds the boy singing ragtime in a "beer garden." He whips the child and Jackie runs away. Ten years elapse, Jackie, now Jack Robin, obtains a part in a New York musical phon through Mary Dale, a dancer. He returns home, but when his father learns that he is a jazz singer he drives him out. At dress rehearsal Dillings, the backer of the show, withdraws his money because of his jealousy of Mary's love for Jack. Yudelson, the cantor's friend, arrives at the theatre with a message from Jack's mother.

"Oh, I see," Jack looked at Mary and laughed. "That's all right, Yudelson. This is Miss Mary Dale, Mr. Yudelson," he introduced the two. "Miss Dale is the leading lady in this show."

"How do you do, Mr. Yudelson," Mary shook hands with the Jeweler.

"It's a pleasure I should meet you," Yudelson clasped Mary's hand gravely, and looked sidewise at Jack. So this was the girl about whom Jackie had written. This was the one who had got him his job on the stage. But this was no Jenny Levi—this was a real "shiksa." He looked around him a little overcome. Chorus girls pattered about, their bare legs gleaming in the shadows of the wings. He stared, fascinated at all these strange sights—so fascinated that he was almost forgetting his message.

"Mr. Yudelson is an old friend of my family," Jack was explaining to Mary. "He's known me ever since I was a child. He's a great friend of my father's."

"Yudelson, this is Miss Mary Dale."

"Sure, sure," Yudelson nodded, catching the tail end of Jack's remarks. "Cantor Rabinowitz and me are such friends like we was born together."

At the words "Cantor Rabinowitz" Mary gave a little start of surprise. So—that explained a great deal. Now she understood what Jack meant when he spoke of his family's aversion to the stage. He was the son of a cantor. Jack looked at Mary confused. At first he didn't know quite what to say. He didn't know what Mary's reactions would be to this sudden acquisition of knowledge concerning his parentage. But his hesitation was only momentary. He drew himself up proudly.

"Yes," he said simply, "my father is the finest cantor on the East Side."

There, it was out at last. Jack felt relieved. It was like getting rid of a long-aching tooth. Mary had always taken him for what he was—without question or query. He was a good actor with a fine voice, and she was in love with him—that was all that was necessary. Jack had always sensed this at least in Mary, and what he had told her of his past had come from him voluntarily. But, having been raised in a good Hebrew family, he knew the storms that arose over the marriage of Jew with Gentile. He knew the prejudices, the dogmatism of both races.

Furthermore he could realize, having learned much from his ten years of experience out in the world, that a girl raised as Mary obviously had been, might easily make social distinctions which would be detrimental to his cause. His father was a Jew and a cantor, a learned man and as such, respected and held in high esteem by the people of his race and his section of the city. But Jack had long ago found that very often an inability to speak the English language correctly meant more to some people than any amount of learning. His mother would probably not approve of Mary because she was a Gentile and of society

SENHORITA EARNED RIGHT OF ARREST

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 28.—(UP)—Senhorita Eulina Thome de Souza, dressed like a cowboy, was arrested recently on the streets of Rio de Janeiro while campaigning for women's votes, a subject that has been agitating congress.

"I represent all my countrywomen. I embody the Brazilian feminine ideal. You can't arrest me for that," Senhorita Eulina recorded.

The policeman who led her away and the theatre, any more than Mary's mother would approve of him because he was a Jew and of the Ghetto.

"Did you never heard of Cantor Rabinowitz of the Orchard Street Synagogue?" Vaguely he could hear Yudelson's voice fraught with surprise at the very fact that anyone should never have heard of such a famous personage. "He is a great cantor," Yudelson was expounding on the virtues of his friend. "The best by any synagogue. He sings just like he was talking to God. And the 'Kol Nidre'—you should hear him sing. Oh! A voice he has got."

"I should like to hear him sing very much," Mr. Yudelson," Mary said. "I'll come down to the Synagogue some time if I may. But I know you want to talk to Jack, so I'll run along. I'm so glad to have met you," she smiled and stretched out her hand to Yudelson.

"By me it's all right, too," Yudelson seized her slender fingers and shook them heartily.

As Mary moved away Jack took Yudelson by the arm and plotted him around and across the stage behind the backdrop.

"There's a little more room over here," Jack explained. "The girls exit on that side after this number. But how in the world did you ever happen to come up here?" he continued after they had reached more quiet spot.

"Well, Jackie, I come up to tell you tomorrow is the Day of Atonement—Yom Kippur—and we want you should sing Kol Nidre by the temple tonight."

"Sing! In the Synagogue—tonight! But don't you know, Yudelson—why isn't my father singing tonight?" Jack's heart jumped. At first he had been thinking only of the absurdity of his singing in the Synagogue when his show was opening that same night. Then he suddenly realized that something must be wrong, otherwise Yudelson wouldn't have come for him.

"What's the matter with my father?" he repeated.

"So! Is what I come to tell you, Jackie. Your papa is sick. He can't sing."

"Say, how long has he been sick? What's the matter with him? Has he got a good doctor?" Jack questioned with a worried expression.

"Sure, the best doctor in New York—Dr. O'Shaughnessy from the Rockefeller Institute. But he ain't no better. He has been sick since the day you was there," Yudelson told him. "And now tonight start the Day of Atonement and this is the first time in your papa's life what he wouldn't be able to sing in the Synagogue on Yom Kippur. So we had a meeting from the committee who should sing in his place. So I ask your mama, and she thought it would please your papa if you sing tonight."

"But my God, Yudelson, he thrives me out of the house only two weeks ago," Jack bitterly reviewed that scene in his mind.

"Oh, Jackie, don't be foolish. How much times was you threw out—one time?" Yudelson argued. "A son could be threw out twenty times by the papa, and yet a son is a son. And it would make such a surprise for your papa if you sing tonight."

"But my God, Yudelson, I can't do it." "Ach, now Jackie such a time I had with the committee—you know how it is a committee—they wanted Levy, the Shamus, should sing. But I'm the chairman and they all owe me money, so when they voted it was the way your mama and me wanted. I told them Jackie, who he was a little boy and he sang in the choir, his papa learned him all the words of all the prayers, and what a little boy learns he never forgets. And even if maybe a few words you should forget you can look in the prayer book. See, I got confidence in you, Jackie, and so has your mama."

"But don't you understand, Yudelson? Our show opens tonight. It's the chance I've dreamed of for years."

"You, papa is sick, and you are his son. He learned you should be a cantor, and now you should come back to the Synagogue." To Yudelson there was only one answer to his plea. Nothing should stand between a son and his filial duty. Thousands of years of beliefs were in his attitude—beliefs which from time immemorial have held the desert tribes together and furthered their existence. And the belief was inherent in Jackie, save that he armed himself against it with the armor of his ten years' tramping in the theatre.

"Yudelson, the show business is different from every other kind of business," he tried to explain his attitude. "Even if there is a death in the family an actor plays his part—the show goes on. No one out front knows what's happening back here. The actor mustn't allow anyone to know. It's just like religion—like soldiers trained in an army."

IN SOCIETY

MISS ALLISON DELAPLAINE, SOCIETY EDITOR

Ritz Club Meets

After a season of pleasurable entertaining, the gentlemen of the Ritz Club reciprocated by entertaining their ladies with a six o'clock dinner and cards at the Gray Brick tea room, Friday evening.

An elaborate three course dinner was served, carried out in yellow and white, in keeping with the proximity of Easter. The appointments of the small tables were most attractive, each centered with a crystal vase of yellow jonquils, carnations and fern, tied with a bow of yellow tulle.

Following the delightfully prolonged dinner hour, the eight tables adjourned to the living rooms for a spirited five hundred game. The favors for high score were handsome and were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edge, Mrs. Kerns Thompson and Mr. James Summers. Mr. Frederick R. Graves won the guest prize.

Others participating in the evening's pleasures were Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Leland, Mr. and Mrs. David Stonerock, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Katz, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Stiemler, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dice, Mr. and Mrs. Kearns Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. James Summers, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Buzick, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Celebrate Anniversary

On Wednesday, March 21st, the friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hennessy of near Frankfort assembled at the Estel Chapel church, to pay homage to these beloved people who, on that day, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

The affair became a community one, with friends coming from far and wide to offer congratulations and to enjoy the occasion with Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy.

At noon, more than one hundred guests were seated at long tables for a bounteous dinner, all sorts of good things to eat being provided. The tables were particularly lovely, with their gold and white decorations emphasized in the bowls of narcissus which centered them, and the gold candles which shed a soft glow over the scene. In the center of the table where the honor guests were seated, was the wedding cake of three tiers, bearing fifty golden candles and the figures "75-23."

Seated about Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy were their five daughters, Mrs. Little Jones and Mrs. Ruby Head of Columbus, Mrs. Follie Goldsberry of Frankfort, Mrs. Mary Graves of Clarksville, and Miss Carrie Hennessy, at home, while they were especially glad to have with them their two great granddaughters, Judith Ann and Patsy Jane, of Akron, who came with their mother, Mrs. Nye Acton, for the celebration.

Following the dinner, the afternoon was devoted to a program, prepared by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Stanforth. Most of the numbers were presented by former scholars of Mr. Hennessy, and were as follows:

1. Instrumental duet—Misses Opal Browning and Rose Hickey.
2. Vocal duet—Russell Brown and Wayne Morgan.
3. Piano solo—Mrs. Sam Briggs.
4. Reading—"Marriage"—Miss Mildred Gates.
5. Vocal solo—Sam Briggs.
6. Reminiscences—A reading—Miss Elita Junk.
7. Saxophone duet—Clinton and Richard Brown.
8. Talk—Martin Junk, a family friend.
9. Vocal solo—Mrs. Jessie Seitz.
10. Talk—Rev. W. L. Hickey, former pastor.

At the conclusion of the program, much to everyone's surprise, Rev. Stanforth baptized little Patsy Jane Acton, who was privileged to have her grandparents, and great-grandparents as sponsors.

Those who came from a distance for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Spence, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miller, Mrs. Carrie Patton, Mrs. Mary Shortridge, Mrs. Joseph Shortridge and daughter, Mary, of Circleville; Mrs. Celia Playley and daughter, Maud, Mrs. Marjory Day, of Greenfield; Mr.

and Mrs. T. Edgar Cartman, Mrs. Carrie Mossbarger, of Williamsport; Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Hickey, of Sedalia, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Hennessy were married fifty years ago in Illinois, but for the past forty-four years have resided in the vicinity in which they now make their home, and everyone who has come into contact with them has come to love them. They were presented with numerous lovely gifts, many of them in gold, and were the recipients of messages from those of their family and friends who were unable to be with them.

Ritz Club Meets
After a season of pleasurable entertaining, the gentlemen of the Ritz Club rededicated by entertaining their ladies with a six o'clock dinner and cards at the Gray Brick tea room, Friday evening.

An elaborate three course dinner was served, carried out in yellow and white, in keeping with the proximity of Easter. The appointments of the small tables were most attractive, each centered with a crystal vase of yellow jonquils, carnations and fern, tied with a bow of yellow tulle.

Following the delightfully prolonged dinner hour, the eight tables adjourned to the living rooms for a spirited Five Hundred game. The favors for high score were handsome and were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edge, Mrs. Kerns Thompson and Mr. James Summers, Mr. Frederick R. Graves won the guest prize.

Others participating in the evening's pleasures were Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Leland, Mr. and Mrs. David Stonerock, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Katz, Dr. and Mrs. A. S. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28—Although the New York Yankees celebrated the forty-eighth birthday of Manager Miller Huggins by losing to the Reds again yesterday, 6 to 4, better times are in sight for the world's champions. From now on until they hit New York, they will play only minor league opponents.

Yesterday's set-back was the Huggins' eighth defeat in the Grapefruit league. They got ten hits of Luque and Rixey, but errors by Koenig and Collins and Hank Johnson's wildness proved costly.

The Yanks will take on the Buffalo Bisons today.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 28 — (INS) — The series between the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox ends here today. O'Doul's single in the tenth gave the Giants yesterday's game by a 4 to 3 margin.

MIAMI, Fla., March 28 — The Brooklyn Robins begin a four-game series with the Boston Braves here today. The batting averages of the Brooklyn Regulars to date are: Tyson .429, Herman .393, Hendrick .342, Riconda .333, Bissonette .314, Bancroft .280, Freigau .227.

LOS ANGELES, March 28 — A deal was rumored on foot here which will bring Ray Jacobs, Los Angeles infielder, into the Cubs fold in exchange for a pitcher and outfielder. The Cubs are also expected to place some of their Rookies today. Phil Weinert is slated to be returned to San Francisco. The Cubs continued their exhibition winning streak yesterday, trouncing Hollywood 7 to 5. Cuyler's four hits in five times up paved the way.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 28 — The White Sox were downcast today over the apparent collapse of their offensive, as demonstrated in recent exhibition games. They have only one more week here in which to train. One bright spot for the Sox, despite its meanness, is the utter flop of the New York Yankees, who have lost seven of their eight games to date. That thought made even Manager "Cracker" Schalk smile.

REED NOT AMBITIOUS

WASHINGTON, March 28 — (INS) — Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, will not seek delegates in Indiana to support him for the Democratic Presidential nomination. He announced this decision in a telegram to Evans Woolen, Indiana's Democratic favorite son candidate.

ALUMNI WILL MEET

A group meeting of Muhlenberg Township's Alumni Association will be held on Friday night, April 6th, at Darbyville, according to Orville E. Hill. Members are urged to attend.

OBITUARIES

Lydia A., daughter of Isaac and Sarah E. Culp, was born in Salt Creek township, Pickaway county, O., on Oct. 4, 1852, and departed this life on the same farm on which she was born, on Saturday March 24, 1928, aged 75 years, five months and 20 days.

She was baptized in infancy and later ratified her faith in Christ by uniting with Jerusalem Reform church, remaining a faithful member of the congregation until the doors were closed and the church finally abandoned.

She was united in marriage with Samuel Alexander on Feb. 20, 1870, who died at Toledo, O., on Sept. 20, 1898, in the explosion of the Union elevator.

On Nov. 29, 1906, she was joined in marriage to Sylvester Hummel, who departed this life May 11, 1917.

Father, mother and three brothers have preceded her to the great beyond. Of the immediate family those left to mourn her departure are three brothers: George, of near South Bloomingville; Lewis, of Marietta, and Charles E., of Akron, O.; and four sisters: Mrs. Almeda Davis, of Columbus; Mrs. Miranda Hickman of Toledo; Mrs. Jessie Campbell of Martins Ferry, O.; Mrs. Mary Jane Patterson of Los Angeles, Calif.; and Martha, of the home.

As Father Time was turning the page of another week and the sun was setting on a bright and budding spring day, another soul took its flight from its earthly habitation to pass on to its rest, a place where days, weeks and years never end and where the sun never sets—a place eternal in the Heavens.

Her kindly disposition, her congenial spirit and her desire to always make other people happy were among the great assets that so well balanced her life's ledger.

While she was childless her manifestations of fondness for the children of others and her disposition to do good and help the needy certainly made her mother to many.

Her friends were numbered by her acquaintance and she came from a long line of pioneer stock possessing many qualities of kindness of disposition, uprightness, frugality and Christian character that are well worthy of emulation.

She will be sadly missed, not only by those nearest her, but by her large circle of relatives and friends; but our worldly loss is her Heavenly gain and may we find our consolation in the fact that our Savior doeth all things well.

The funeral services were held from the home in Salt Creek township Monday at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. Frederick Brown, of Adelphi. Burial took place Tuesday at Toledo, Ohio.

Josiah B. Valentine, son of John and Caroline Bowers Valentine, born in Circleville township, Feb. 5, 1837, departed this life in the home of his nephew, C. F. Young on March 24, 1928, at 3 p. m., aged 91 years, one month and 19 days.

He was baptized in infancy, united with the Evangelical Lutheran church in Circleville, O., on the ninth day of April A. D., 1852, by Rev. Joseph A. Roof. The deceased was the last of a family of seven children three brothers and three sisters preceding him to the spirit world. He leaves to mourn two nephews: C. F. Young and H. E. Young and one niece, Mrs. C. Saltzgeber, and many relatives and friends.

He was enrolled as private in Co. C, 15th Regiment, O. V. I., April 24, 1861, was mustered in to service May 6, 1861, and transferred to Regimental band on same date. It was mustered out with Co. C, Aug. 24, 1864, at Columbus, O.

SAND AND WIND FACED AS BIG RACE GOES ON

Britisher Climbs Into Second

By LELAND C. LEWIS

LOS LUNAS, N. Mex., March 28
—C. C. ("cross country") Pyle gave Albuquerque only a microscopic view of his short-painted athletes as they pushed eastward today into the desert fastness toward their twenty-fifth night control.

After battling sand and wind along the forty-nine-mile stretch between Old Laguna and Los Lu-nas, on the banks of the Rio Grande, the runners approved the decision of Pyle not to visit the New Mexico metropolis.

Not Behind Race
"Officials of Albuquerque demonstrated that they were not behind the race," Pyle said, "when they refused to permit our programme men to sell that the public may identify individual athletes. When that ultimatum was issued I had to revise my route accordingly. We still are following United States highway No. 66, the 'Main street of America.' And in this case we are not using Albuquerque's alleys."

When the heel and toe field started from Los Lunas this morning, Arne Suominen, Detroit medico, held the lead with an elapsed time of 144 hours, two minutes for the 855 miles from Los Angeles.

Put Hog Raising on a Sound Basis

The corner stone of the whole hog-raising business is the brood sow. What are you doing to help her produce a fine, healthy litter of pigs, this spring—next fall?

Feed is mighty important, especially during the periods of gestation and nursing,
when the mother must nourish her babies
as well as herself.

And when it comes to feed for hogs—especially for brood sows—you can't equal Tuxedo Hog Ration! (Thousands of successful hog raisers say so.)

Your brood sows will do better, your baby
pigs will do better and YOU will do better when you feed them Tuxedo Hog Ration—the feed that makes bone, blood, flesh and energy.

Secure your supply from any of the dealers named below—and get a new thrill out of this hog raising business by putting it on a sound basis.

BY
WRITER, BASEBALL, FOOTBALL, HOCKEY

The current spring training season has been marked by an unusually large number of casualties among the major league ball clubs.

Fortunately, there has been as yet no accident sufficiently severe in its effect to end the baseball career of the players involved.

No club, however, has escaped the blight of injured hands, bruised legs and crippled throwing arms. Grippe and influenza have taken a light toll among the active lists.

The New York Yankees have suffered an epidemic of blisters.
"Mine are worse than I ever knew them to be," complained Babe Ruth, recently. Every time I grab a bat it feels as though I had picked up a red hot horse-shoe. I may have to start the season with my hands taped, and I don't want that to happen, because I am going right out after my home run record from the very first pitch."

In one day, the Cleveland Indians lost four men from active service. The Cincinnati Reds have suffered greatly from minor injuries and illness. Although the club has two of the best first basemen in the business in Wally Pipp and George Kelly, it has been struggling along with a rookie second baseman playing the initial sack.

The St. Louis Cardinals are generally rated as the strongest outfit in the National League. Casualties of spring may reduce them to second or third choice when the opening ball is tossed out on April 11.

A major league manager never can count his club's strength on paper without writing off so much for depreciation due to injuries and illness. And when these start in the spring training season they are particularly hard to bear.

The National League recently discussed a proposition whereby its clubs might carry additional players on a "casualty list." These would be players so seriously ill or severely injured as to be incapacitated for at least 60 days. By this means, a manager could keep his roster of active players filled and still not lost the services of some valuable man who happened to be put out of action for a period of two months or more.

The New York Yankees, unfortunate in the matter of casualties
two seasons ago, came through the 1927 campaign with most of their regulars intact. Col. Ruppert and Miller Huggins, looking forward to a third successive pennant, doubtless shudder to think what an injury to Babe Ruth would mean to the club in morale, money and margin of victories.

At the other end of the league, the St. Louis Browns have quite as much concern about the health of their leading players. A cellar contender usually has fewer able replacements than an organization which has won five pennants in seven years.

The Browns had to struggle through the early period of spring training without the services of Heinie Manush, who was just about the most valuable player they obtained in the winter trading. Manush of the night bat was due for delivery F. O. B. Detroit, early in March.

However, he had the misfortune to fall down stairs, break his arm and paralyze his right hand. Doctors have assured Dan Howley that Manush soon will be as good as new and he has begun light workouts with the club.

Of all the clubs fitted to survive a period of injuries to regulars, the Philadelphia Athletics would seem to be the best prepared. Connie Mack has five crack outfielders and at least two good men for every infield job, to say nothing of Cochrane, Perkins and Fox behind the bat.
Unless lightning strikes several times in the same spot, the manager of the Athletics is not worrying.

a result of their 4 to 0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates last night.
The two teams will meet again
Thursday night and the team that scores the most goals in the two games will meet the Boston Bruins

Put Hog Raising on a Sound Basis

The corner stone of the whole hog-raising business is the brood sow. What are you doing to help her produce a fine, healthy litter of pigs, this spring—next fall?

Feed is mighty important, especially during the periods of gestation and nursing,
when the mother must nourish her babies
as well as herself.

And when it comes to feed for hogs—especially for brood sows—you can't equal Tuxedo Hog Ration! (Thousands of successful hog raisers say so.)

Your brood sows will do better, your baby
pigs will do better and YOU will do better when you feed them Tuxedo Hog Ration—the feed that makes bone, blood, flesh
and energy.

Secure your supply from any of the dealers
named below—and get a new thrill out of this hog raising business by putting it on a sound basis.

BY FRANK GETTY

The current spring training season has been marked by an unusually large number of casualties among the major league ball clubs.
Fortunately, there has been as yet no accident sufficiently severe in its effect to end the baseball career of the players involved.

No club, however, has escaped the blight of injured hands, bruised legs and crippled throwing arms. Grippe and influenza have taken a light toll among the active lists.

The New York Yankees have suffered an epidemic of blisters.
"Mine are worse than I ever knew them to be," complained Babe Ruth, recently. Every time I grab a bat it feels as though I had picked up a red hot horse-shoe. I may have to start the season with my hands taped, and I don't want that to happen, because I am going right out after my home run record from the very first pitch."

In one day, the Cleveland Indians lost four men from active service. The Cincinnati Reds have suffered greatly from minor injuries and illness. Although the club has two of the best first basemen in the business in Wally Pipp and George Kelly, it has been struggling along with a rookie second baseman playing the initial sack.

The St. Louis Cardinals are generally rated as the strongest outfit in the National League. Casualties of spring may reduce them to second or third choice when the opening ball is tossed out on April 11.

A major league manager never can count his club's strength on paper without writing off so much for depreciation due to injuries and illness. And when these start in the spring training season they are particularly hard to bear.

The National League recently discussed a proposition whereby its clubs might carry additional players on a "casualty list." These would be players so seriously ill or severely injured as to be incapacitated for at least 60 days. By this means, a manager could keep his roster of active players filled and still not lose the services of some valuable man who happened to be put out of action for a period of two months or more.

The New York Yankees, unfortunate in the matter of casualties
two seasons ago, came through the 1927 campaign with most of their regulars intact. Col. Ruppert and Miller Huggins, looking forward to a third successive pennant, doubtless shudder to think what an injury to Babe Ruth would mean to the club in morale, money and margin of victories.

At the other end of the league, the St. Louis Browns have quite as much concern about the health of their leading players. A cellar contender usually has fewer able replacements than an organization which has won five pennants in seven years.

The Browns had to struggle through the early period of spring training without the services of Heinie Manush, who was just about the most valuable player they obtained in the winter trading. Manush of the night bat was due for delivery F. O. B. Detroit, early in March.
However, he had the misfortune to fall down stairs, break his arm and paralyze his right hand. Doctors have assured Dan Howley that Manush soon will be as good as new and he has begun light workouts with
the club.

Of all the clubs fitted to survive a period of injuries to regulars, the Philadelphia Athletics would seem to be the best prepared. Connie Mack has five crack outfielders and at least two good men for every infield job, to say nothing of Cochrane, Perkins and Fox behind the bat.
Unless lightning strikes several times in the same spot, the manager of the Athletics is not worrying.

RANGERS GO GOOD

NEW YORK, March 28 — (UP)
— The New York Rangers today were almost certain to advance to the finals of the American group in the National Hockey League as a result of their 4 to 0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates last night.
The two teams will meet again
Thursday night and the team that scores the most goals in the two games will meet the Boston Bruins
in the American division final.

Training Camp Briefs

By International News Service
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28.—Although the New York Yankees celebrated the forty-eighth birthday of Manager Miller Huggins by losing to the Reds again yesterday, 6 to 4, better times are in sight for the world's champions. From now on until they hit New York, they will play only minor league opponents.

Yesterday's set-back was the Huggins' eighth defeat in the Grapefruit league. They got ten hits of Luque and Rixey, but errors by Koenig and Collins and Hank Johnson's wildness proved costly.

The Yanks will take on the Buffalo Bisons today.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 28.—(INS)—The series between the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox ends here today. O'Doul's single in the tenth gave the Giants yesterday's game by a 4 to 3 margin.

MIAMI, Fla., March 28.—The Brooklyn Robins begin a four-game series with the Boston Braves here today. The batting averages of the Brooklyn Regulars to date are: Tyson .429, Herman .393, Hendrick .342, Ricard .333, Bissonette .314, Bancroft .280, Freigau .227.

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—A deal was rumored on foot here which will bring Ray Jacobs, Los Angeles infielder, into the Cubs fold in exchange for a pitcher and outfielder. The Bruins are also expected to place some of their Rookies today. Phil Weinert is slated to be returned to San Francisco. The Cubs continued their exhibition winning streak yesterday, trouncing Hollywood 7 to 5. Cuyler's four hits in five times up paved the way.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 28.—The White Sox were downcast today over the apparent collapse of their offensive, as demonstrated in recent exhibition games. They have only one more week here in which to train. One bright spot to the Sox, despite its meanness, is the utter flop of the New York Yankees, who have lost seven of their eight games to date. That thought made even Manager "Cracker" Schalk smile.

REED NOT AMBITIOUS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(INS)—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, will not seek delegates in Indiana to support him for the Democratic Presidential nomination. He announced this decision in a telegram to Evans Woolen, Indiana's Democratic favorite son candidate.

ALUMNI WILL MEET

A group meeting of Muhlenberg Township's Alumni Association will be held on Friday night, April 6th, at Darbyville, according to Orville E. Hill. Members are urged to attend.

A sample slogan later in the season: "Who for President? Hoover?"—Fostoria, O., Times.

OBITUARIES

Lydia A., daughter of Isaac and Sarah E. Culp, was born in Salt-creek township, Pickaway county, O., on Oct. 4, 1852, and departed this life on the same farm on which she was born, on Saturday, March 24, 1928, aged 75 years, five months and 20 days.

She was baptized in infancy and later ratified her faith in Christ by uniting with Jerusalem Reform church, remaining a faithful member of the congregation until the doors were closed and the church finally abandoned.

She was united in marriage with Samuel Alexander on Feb. 20, 1870, who died at Toledo, O., on Sept. 20, 1898, in the explosion of the Union elevator.

On Nov. 29, 1906, she was joined in marriage to Sylvester Hummel, who departed this life May 11, 1917.

Father, mother and three brothers have preceded her to the great beyond. Of the immediate family those left to mourn her departure are three brothers: George, of near South Bloomingville; Lewis, of Marietta; and Charles E., of Akron, O.; and four sisters: Mrs. Almada Davis, of Columbus; Mrs. Miranda Hickman of Toledo; Mrs. Jessie Campbell of Martins Ferry, O.; Mrs. Mary Jane Fitzsimmons of Los Angeles, Calif. and Martha, of the home.

As Father Time was turning the page of another week and the sun was setting on a bright and budding spring day, another soul took its flight from its earthly habitation to pass on to its rest—a place where days, weeks and years never end and where the sun never sets—a place eternal in the Heavens.

Her kindly disposition, her congenial spirit and her desire to always make other people happier, were among the great assets that so well balanced her life's ledger.

While she was childless, her manifestations of fondness for the children of others and her disposition to do good and help them, certainly made her mother to many.

Her friends were numbered by her acquaintance and she comes from a long line of pioneer stock, possessing many qualities of kindness of disposition, uprightness, frugality and Christian character that are well worthy of emulation.

She will be sadly missed, not only by those nearest her, but by her large circle of relatives and friends; but our worldly loss is her Heavenly gain and may we find our consolation in the fact that our Savior doeth all things well.

The funeral services were held from the home in Saltcreek township Monday at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. Frederick Brown, of Adelphi. Burial took place Tuesday at Toledo, Ohio.

Josiah B. Valentine, son of John and Caroline Bowers Valentine, born in Circleville township, Feb. 5, 1837, departed this life in the home of his nephew, C. F. Young on March 24, 1928, at 3 p. m., aged 91 years, one month and 19 days. Was baptized in infancy, united with the Evangelical Lutheran church in Circleville, O., on the ninth day of April A. D. 1852, by Rev. Joseph A. Roof. The deceased was the last of a family of seven children, three brothers and three sisters preceding him to the spirit world. He leaves to mourn two nephews: C. F. Young and H. E. Young and one niece, Mrs. Cora Saltzgeber, and many relatives and friends.

He was enrolled as private in Co. C, 13th Regiment O. V. I., April 24, 1861, was mustered into service May 6, 1861, and transferred to Regimental band on same date. It was mustered out with Co. C, Aug. 24, 1864, at Columbus, O.

Card of Thanks

Eric Woman Makes Remarkable Statement About Simple Home Remedy That Quickly Ended Her Trouble.

"I am so grateful for the great benefit received from Dr. Jackson's Digestive and Liver Powder, I feel I ought to write this letter. I suffered from stomach trouble terribly, began to grow thin and weak, and was so gassy didn't know what to do—then, I started taking Dr. Jackson's Digestive and Liver Powder and now feel entirely relieved. I now eat any and everything and feel just fine!—Harriet M. Gross, Erie, Pa.
Because Dr. Jackson's Digestive and Liver Powder is quickly dissolved in the stomach it gives instant and lasting relief in nearly all cases of Acute Indigestion, Gas, Sourness, Bloating, Heartburn, Nausea, Headache, Dizzy Spells and Shortness of Breath. It is easy, pleasant and inexpensive to use—and sold by all good druggists. Write for big free sample to The Jackson Medicine Company, Dept. N, Zanesville, Ohio.

Something seems to tell us that raising campaign funds will be a rather difficult job this year.—Delaware, O., Gazette.

Attractive Eyes Depend Much Upon Health

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City.

ONE of the most attractive of the features is the human eye. It matters not whether the eye is large or small, light or dark, if it is clear and bright, it makes instant appeal.

The "white" of the eye must be white. It must not be low or muddy in appearance. It must be free from engorged blood vessels.

What are the causes of blood-shot eyes? Some persons get up every morning with red eyes. They may bleed out after a while, but as soon as the light strikes them they get red.

Other persons have such sensitive eyes that to ride in the wind, or to face the sun, will cause the white of the eye to become engorged with blood. Dust and smoke are most irritating to them.

I need not speak of the effect of a foreign body. It is to be expected, of course, that this would cause the eye to become inflamed. In nine cases out of ten, the reason for a blood-shot eye can be found in eye strain. The need of glasses, either for reading, for distance, or for both uses, is likely to be the cause of all the trouble.

When you have your eyes examined if glasses are needed, see if the eye muscles are normal. It happens sometimes that the eyes are not doing their work, but may do very well, each in its own way, but together they strain the muscles. There is a lack of muscle balance which will produce blood-shot eyes.

Of course there are diseases of the lining of the eye or of the eye covering, which may produce redness. This membrane is called the "conjunctiva" and inflammation of it is known as conjunctivitis.

"Granulated eyelids" and "pink eye" are forms of conjunctivitis. Redness of the tissues is a symptom of every form of conjunctivitis.

The margins of the eyelids become inflamed. This is another cause for the blood-shot condition.

If your eyes easily inflame, or if there is a tendency to have obstinate redness, it is essential that you should have a thorough examination. It is not proper to permit any congestion to go untreated.

The trouble may be due to a condition so trifling that it may be removed by a very simple procedure. Do not permit your eyes to become inflamed by the use of eye drops. Do not find the cause of the redness.

Even if you need glasses, it may well be that they will be worn only part of the time, when you are reading or sewing, or when facing weather or bright lights. There are special makes of glass intended to shut out irritating rays.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE
In Which She Discusses the "Ensemble"

IT takes many kinds of people to make a world and our shop, being part of the world, gets all kinds.

Of course, there are those with lots of money who can afford to buy everything that strikes their fancy; there are those moderately wealthy who drop in now and then; there are those who have to stifle their desire for a costume and yet who prefer to come to a good fashionable house instead of hunting out the bargain emporiums whose models never quite disguise their cheapness.

They are the wise ones who are not scared away by the fear of exorbitant prices at a Madison Avenue specialty shop. They cannot afford many dresses. Very well then, they will buy one—but they will select that one to "go" with everything, exercising great care in making a purchase that will lend itself to various color schemes for variety. One is not quick to tire of a dress that will lend itself successfully to different styles and colors of accessories and there is the satisfaction of knowing that even if one can have only one new dress a season, it is a lovely one and will be a successful part of various "ensembles."

Mrs. Carruthers is one of this kind. Yesterday, she ordered a simple little Kasha model, with one-sided revers and simple blouse whose tiers connected rectangularly with three pleats down the front of the skirt.

The collar escaped from the neckline at the left side and ended in a monogrammed tab. "Have the monogram done in natural colored silk," said Mrs. Carruthers. "You see, this dress represents my Spring wardrobe—I can't have another, and I want to be able to combine this with many colors. If I have it monogrammed in brown, I am limited in color selection for accessories; whereas if the monogram is a natural color, I can buy different color belts for it, and by combining it

A Sign of Spring

THE arrival of Spring is foretold by many an advance agent. The ground hog is an early harbinger. Then there are all kinds of hibernating birds who come back with the first change in the atmosphere. There are the warm showers which bring forth the little verdant shoots from the ground and cause the trees to blossom forth in glad array.

Heavy coats are sent to storage and lighter ones take their place. All these are signs of Spring, but the surest of all is the gay chapeau of milady. Every shop window, every fashion magazine and every newspaper is displaying an elaborate assortment of new chapeaux. Above all, it is milady herself attired charmingly in her new Spring outfit and her attractive Spring hat who announces the glad tidings that Spring is here and Summer can't be far behind.

Love's Embers "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison
Eleanor Lincoln Confesses Everything to Madge

"DID you ever hear"—the Princess Olina of Transylvania paused teasingly and laughed with impish delight—of an operation called in your delightful American slang, "nose bobbing?"

I struck one hand against the other in annoyance at my own stupidity. If I had thought of that obvious fact, I would have been absolutely certain of the pseudo Eleanor Lincoln's identity at my first sight of the photograph Mrs. Townsend had brought me.

"Or worse," I said. "It explains everything except the fact that all the newspapers and official reports of your native land proclaim you to be convalescing slowly in a country palace from the illness which supposedly seized you in this country just before your party sailed for home."

The impish smile vanished from her lips, and I saw that the delight in her ingenious prank which her irrepressible youth manifested was shadowed by the thought of the distress she had caused her parents.

"Those reports were all for the purpose of what the Chinese call 'saving face' she said. "But one thing you must know. My mother and father know I'm safe. I haven't been so cruel as to leave them in absolute ignorance. But they don't know where I am, for Georges has sworn not to tell them until I give him permission."

She closed her eyes for an instant as if in utter weariness, then opened them and looked steadily at me. "I suppose I'd better tell you the whole thing from the beginning," she said, and I settled a little deeper in my chair with a little of the thrill with which one approaches a new book or play which promises excitement.

"It began several years ago when I was still a little girl," she said. "Perhaps you have seen the photographs of Albert, King of Trees."

I nodded with a little shiver, for I always had turned in repugnance from the pictures of the stout, middle-aged, little man with no single redeeming feature in the ugliness of his face, and whose moral and intellectual character was what of it corresponded to his physical drawbacks.

"If you'd ever seen him instead of his photographs, you'd shiver worse than that," Princess Olina said. "He's simply horrible! But, of course, he's a real king, and you know how it is with the daughters of a royal house—we are brought up to believe that it is our duty to strengthen our own dynasty by marrying rulers of other friendly countries whenever possible. My other sisters were obedient, but neither of them drew such an awful fate as mine would be, for after Albert's wife died, he came to our court—his father represented Albert there for years—I realized what a horror marriage with Albert would be. You see, Georges and I were awfully beloved, and he was so young and handsome, and from that day on I was trained to become Albert's wife and the Queen of Trees."

"I was too young to understand what it was all about," the low, rich voice went on, "but after Georges, Albert's nephew, came to our court—his father represented Albert there for years—I realized what a horror marriage with Albert would be. You see, Georges and I were awfully beloved, and he was so young and handsome, and from that day on I was trained to become Albert's wife and the Queen of Trees."

DISTANCE REVIVES FADING ROMANCES

Day-by-Day Intimacies Rub Off the Glamor of Love, but It Seems to Gain Strength by Occasional Absences.

By DR. LOUIS E. BISCH

IT is a well known fact that when couples first marry they want continually to be in each other's presence. The idea of either one of them taking a holiday of his or her own is looked down upon with an intense feeling almost amounting to abhorrence.

Nevertheless, there is no gainsaying the further fact that many, if not most, married people begin to wonder whether their love might not be revived and intensified if they did actually separate for a time—and such thoughts creep into the mind often with surprising speed after the marriage ceremony.

In this day of divorces and marital discontent and unhappiness the question may well be raised whether or not husbands and wives should separate.

Women frequently complain that enforced intimacy is a major cause of divorce. Married men also complain that as women settle down in married life they take less interest in themselves, in their personal appearance, in making themselves charming.

Men claim, in other words, that women cease to bother about the very attributes that made them so attractive before marriage—those subtle, indefinable somethings that may be summed up as the mystery of sex.

Men claim, for instance, that they wouldn't forget birthdays and wedding anniversaries if it weren't for that.

Boiled down, it amounts to this: Discontented husbands and discontented wives chafe because they see too much of each other.

Analyze what they complain of and you'll find it can be expressed in the fading of romance.

During the honeymoon, romance was supreme. They did not complain of seeing each other too much then—of being too dependent upon one another.

One sex has always surrounded the other with an aura of mystery and this mystery has been the source from which all romance has sprung.

The intimacies that go with marriage penetrate the mystery and dissolve it into nothingness! The mystery then should be preserved if the divorce rate is to be cut down. Occasional vacations alone help in this connection.

Absence lends enchantment. Let each be away on his own once in a while and each finds that mutual dependence is even better than mutual independence.

I have known disgruntled married folks to try this recipe and it worked. I have known such people to return to the home fires with the bond of love cemented stronger than ever.

To be sure, the average wife is likely to become just a little suspicious and jealous of her husband when he is on a vacation by himself. Husbands, too, have been known to feel misgivings.

All of it indicates the inherent depth of feeling that the couples bear each other and it only helps to intensify the outpouring of affection, one for the other.

If a man does not miss his wife or the wife the husband, the possibility of a decidedly waning love must always be considered.

Such indifference may, however, only last for a few days. It is rather usual, indeed, for this to be the case. But loneliness soon takes possession of the heart, and the home and wife, or the home and husband, plus the children, begin to appear in the imagination as the most beautiful and consoling values in existence.

If the best is to be got out of such a separate vacation the custom of daily letter writing, one to the other, should be axed and pulled out as easily as a bureau drawer.

The greatest comfort in the kitchen where clothes are frequently dried in the house is the dryer that may be loaded, then run up to the ceiling with pulley and line. The things dry and are out of the way, the long pieces so hung that they do not hang down low enough to be in the way for the workers below.

GOOD-NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

Bobby Discovers a Queer Little Shooter.

BOBBY shouldered his toy gun and ran out towards the big road. Something moved in the branches of the bushes at the edge of the road and after standing perfectly still for a few seconds, Bobbie spied a dear little creature sitting on a twig.

Staring right at Bobby, the little fellow's head looked for all the world like the front of a tiny automobile, his great big yellow eyes like the lamps of the car. It struck Bobby so funny that he laughed.

"Funny?" queried the little creature wrapping his great long tail around the twig he was on. "I don't see anything funny about it. I very seldom miss when I shoot at anything. I don't think it's nice to laugh at folks who make a mistake."

"Well, Mr. What-ever-your-name-is," said Bobby, trying not to laugh any more. "I didn't see you making any mistakes. I don't even see you trying to shoot anything. What are you anyway? I don't believe I've ever seen anything just like you before."

"No?" drawled the queer little fellow, sitting down in the twig and blinking his eyes at Bobby. "Well, I know the way to the big road. I've seen you with happy giggles and Squeedee many times. I'm Mr. Chameleon. Wait a second, don't make a sound, and quick look at me. You've never seen a Chameleon before? Then you don't know we can change our color to suit what ever we are on."

"You are green enough now," laughed Bobby. "I suppose if you were sitting on a red leaf you would change to red?"

"As near as we could," replied Mr. Chameleon. "We can turn black, brown, yellow and most any shade of green that we wish. Sitting on a red leaf we would naturally try to take on that color, too. Suppose we would turn pinkish yellow shade?"

"Mr. Chameleon spied another fly, and like a streak of lightning out shot his funny long tongue, and another fly found its way into his great big mouth. "Did you come out to shoot me?" he laughed.

"With this gun?" laughed Bobby, holding up his popgun. "Goodness, Mr. Chameleon, this is only a toy popgun. I wouldn't shoot anything."

"You would if you liked flies as I do," laughed Mr. Chameleon. "Then you'd better come and live on my back porch, Mr. Chameleon," said Bobby. "Mother certainly hates flies, and so many of them buzz around our back porch."

"Not a bad idea," replied Mr. Chameleon. "I'll come back there tomorrow," and waving good-bye to Bobby, he bounded from one twig to another until Bobby lost sight of him. Then he ran into the house and told his mother about the queer little shooter he had invited to live on their back porch.
